Adaptations of farces into musical comedies are quite the thing nowadays and this popular custom was adhered to last night when Selwyn & Co. presented "Rocky-A-Bye Baby" at the Astor Theatre. It is a musical version of Margaret Mayo's pleasing comedy "Baby Mine," although not quite so appealing as was that plece. Taken as a summer show "Rock-A-Bye Baby" is not so bad. On the other hand, compared with some of the recent musical productions it is not so good. To be true, it has two or three good musical numbers, but Jarome Kern, who wrote the music, has not done as good a job as he has in some of his previous works. It is evident that he has been a triffe too busy

The cast of the show 's just about like everything else, with the exception of Dorothy Dickson, the dancer whose grace and charm gave her the honors of the evening, far above the rest. Miss Dickson Enlivens Show.

Miss Dickson as a matter of fact rebard, she helped in a song that was the only real good one of the show. The title had something to do with it—"There's No Better Use for Time than Kissing." Although the production got away to a mart that might have been better it came up rather well and ended much hetter than might have been expected. What was lacking was a good voice or eo. Edna Munsey having no opposition whatever as the only person who could sing.

Miss Hibbard was a realistic wife, who was estranged from her husband through peculiar circumstances and tried to win him back by adopting a baby, while Frank Morgan was equally pleasing in the role of her husband. the wanted the children that she ce sed to have. Walter Jones was not built for musical comedy, but he hopped and sang as well as might have been expected. Perhaps the reason why he had the part of Jimmy Jinks was because he played as Jimmy when "Baby Mine" was first produced. Alan Hale was a good mati-ne idol, but the rest of the men showed

The production is as good as the aver age musical show and has a good look-ing chorus, which has been drilled in a ternal interest in the musical number where they are supposed to hold a baby in their arms. They tooked as though they might be regarding a brooch from Tany's or something of the sort.

"Rock-a-Bye Baby" is not speed;
ough. What is needed is a couple o good "jass" numbers in addition to the one already in the piece, a couple of folks who can sing and it will be, or should be, very, very good.

this total—Williar H. Kingsley, chief reported $152,940.
William Fox, chairman of Team 7, the allied theatrical and motion pictute team, read aloud a letter which brought out lively applause. It was from Will Rogers, and said:
"Dear Mr. Fox—I have tried hard during the last week to figure out what I personally consider my duty in the amount I should contribute to the Red Cross Fund. While not wealthy, I carn a good salary, and 1 am pleased and grateful for the opportunity to give 10 per cent. of my next year's income. Put me down for $5.200. 1 wish I had greater wealth so I could give more, and but for the obligation I owe to three little children at home I should certainly be over there mysals."

Banks Give Liberally.

A pledge of $100,000 from the First National Bank and one of $75,000 from the Bankers Trust Company were among the first fruits of the action of Congress in passing a bill permitting national banks to contribute to the Red Cross. J. P. Morgan of Team 18 announced these, in addition to $44.785 for his own team. Morgan J. O'Brien of Team 20 announced the largest total for the day, $257,214. Thomas F. Ryan gave $100,-

The teams' total for the day was $1,763,533. Meetings, outdoor and indoor, went on all over New York yesterday with un-abated interest. Byron R. DR. MINOT J. SAVAGE, NOTED PASTOR, DEAD

Next Month-Believed in Spiritualism.

Bosron, May 22.—The Rev. Dr. Minot J. Bavage, Unitarian leader and former minister of the Church of the Messiah in New York, died at a hotel here to-day. He was ill only a few hours.

He came to Boston from his home in Cleveland two weeks ago, and in June was to have married Miss Katherine Jones of Brockton. He was 77 years old.

Until ill health caused his retirement in 1906 from the pulpit of the Church of the Messiah and from active ministry, Minot Judson Savage was for many years one of the best known American préachere and writers. His sermons, collected into many volumes, were widely read by radical thinkers in many lands. He was also an enthusiastic student He was also an enthusiastic student of psychical phenomena and organized the American Psychical Society, which accepted the claims of several spiritualistic mediums and at times was proved to be too credulous. He was, moreover, a poet, and wrote hymns which are sung in Unitarian and other liberal churches.

Son of a Farmer.

Dr. Savage was born in Norridge-walk, Me. on June 10, 1841, and was a farmer's boy. Physical weakness pre-vented him from going to college, but he was graduated from the Congrega-tional Theological School at Bangor in 1864. At his own request he was sent as a missionary to San Mateo, Cal, and then to Grass Valley in the Sierras. Years later he said:

of Chicago. Having already made up his mind that he could not remain in the Congregational denomination, he became a Unitarian and accepted the Chicago which lasted twenty-two years. He was one of a quartet of famous Boston preachers—the others being Phillips Brooks, Edward Everett Hale and Rocke Hereford, who letter with the state of the part of the Federal authorities. Brooks, Edward Everett Hale and Brooke Hereford, who later returned to England—which helped to sustain Bos-ton's reputation as the centre of American religious thought.

Comes to New York.

In 1896 Dr. Savage came to New York as pastor of the Church of the Messiah, succeeding in the active ministry the Rev. Robert Collyer, who re tained connection with the church as pastor emeritus. Here, as in Boston, where he had stirred the community by defending the Darwinian theory of evo-lution against the attacks of the evan-gelists, Dwight L. Moody and Joseph Cook, he made himself the champion of

New York did not accept him as ardently as had Boston. On one of his visits to "In New York Unitarianism is looked down upon as something a little off

OFFERS $1,250,000 HOSPITAL TO U. S.

Beth Israel Is Ready to Build on Its Site Here.

WASHINGTON, May 22.- A generous and timely offer was made to the Government to-day when Representative Isaac Siegel of Manhattan, speaking on behalf of the Beth Israel Hospital of New York city, informed the heads of the War and Navy Departments that the Beth Israel institution stood ready to erect immediately and turn over to o erect immediately and turn over to the Government a hospital in Manhat-

In case the Government accepts the offer the hospital is to be built on a block front in Livingston place, on the east side of Stuyvesant Square, run-ning from East Sixteenth to East Sev-enteenth street. The building as pro-posed would be about fifteen stories high east side of Stuyvesant Square, and equipped with 500 beds. It was said last night at the Beth Israel Hospital, which is a flourishing East Side institution at 70 Jefferson street, that the block front facing Stuyvesant square was purchased by the Hath Israel Hospital Association as Heth Israel Hospital Association as a hospital site in May, 1914. Plans had been perfected to begin building the new home for the institution after the property was secured, but upon the entry of the United States into the big war deference to the Government's need of Years later he said:

Nation's Need.

This is the lay of the red, white and blue egg, as sung last night by a correspondent of unblemished reputation as a teller of truth in Mineola, L. I. Mrs George H. Bedeli of Melville, near Mineoia, has a hen and a phonograph. A week ago the phonograph started to grind out a war tune. The hen straightway entered the sitting room, flew onto a chair and laid a patriotic egg. She repeated this per-formance daily and neighbors began to neglect their household affairs to see Biddle respond to her country's call.

The seventh egg was laid this morning at the conclusion of a phonographic record of "Over the Top with Sam." In the afternoon Mrs.
